FURY OVER 'GAYSTAPO' UKIP MAN

Party gay rights activist resigns over selection

Controversial: Alan Craig has been selected as the party's south-west London candidate

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@
london.newsquest.co.uk

A ex-councillor who once branded LGBT campaigners 'the Gaystapo' has been selected as UKIP's Greater London Authority candidate for Kingston and Richmond, prompting one of the party's leading gay rights activists to quit.

Alan Craig, the former Christian Peoples Alliance leader who defected to UKIP last year, was chosen as the party's south west London candidate over activist Richard Hendron at a hustings last Friday.

Mr Craig has been criticised for referring to same-sex adoption as "tantamount to child abuse" during French anti-equal-marriage protests in 2014 but insists he is not homophobic. He made the 'Gaystapo' comment in the Church of England newspaper in 2011.

Mr Hendron has alleged he was subjected to "homophobic abuse" and a "hate campaign" during his time as a UKIP member, though not from Mr Craig.

The barrister and former police officer also claimed that fielding "openly homophobic" candidates would not help what he called the party's "image problem".

He said in an open letter: "Since

Campaign: Alan Craig chats with UKIP supporters

raising my head above the parapet promoting LGBT issues in UKIP, I have seen the vilest homophobic abuse, witnessed intolerance like I have never seen before and been subject to a hate campaign."

Mr Hendron has said Ukip was perceived as "overflowing with homophobes, racists and bigots".

He also criticised Nigel Farage's remarks during the general election, when the party leader said HIV-positive migrants should be banned from entering the UK.

Mr Craig came under fire last year when he planned to speak at a Transformation Potential conference, a company that promotes the idea that same-sex attraction can be "cured".

He said: "I have never believed that homosexuality can be 'cured' as it is not a disease.

"I am not homophobic. LGBT people deserve respect and the right fully and freely to pursue their lives within the law like every other citizen.

"Further, in a democracy like ours where there is free speech, LGBT activists are free to criticise my politics in the same way I am free to criticise theirs.

"I don't know why Richard has undertaken this attempted character assassination. At the UKIP hustings on Friday we shook hands warmly twice and chatted amiably."

A Ukip spokesman said: "The vetting process goes ahead between branch approval and NEC approval of the candidates.

"The vetting has raised some questions and Mr Craig has been invited to respond to the queries. Until that has happened his candidacy is on hold.

"This is normal procedure and is not the result of campaigns or complaints, but of our processes working.

"That we have other candidates who have differing views merely illustrates our broad and inclusive approach".

Flo Lewis, from the LGBT* in Ukip group, said: "Ukip, and LGBT* in Ukip, respect diversity and individuality. But diversity only works when everybody is willing to come together openly and find common ground; equally, tolerance and communication are two-way streets.

"I'm disappointed that Richard has chosen to resign from UKIP and walk away, rather than work with us to develop our group and LGBT* strategy going forwards and in a productive and open manner.

"His letter wasn't fair for a number of reasons, nor did it accurately represent the reasons why he wasn't selected as a candidate."

Youngsters show bags of enterprise

A YOUNG enterprise company from Southborough High School is taking on the five-pence plastic bag charge.

The team of 24 pupils from the Surbiton school have decided to tackle the problem many shoppers will face with a specific solution.

Zenith, headed by Joe Setterfield, the managing director of the project and a pupil at the school, has created a set of bags distinguished by colour and features.

Joe said: "One bag is green, perfect for your groceries, while another is a cooler bag; ideal for keeping your ice cream and other frozen goods, cold. Bag-It aims to keep your shop stress free; saving heaps of money over the long term."

"Research suggests that the average household uses more than 1,500 bags annually, equating to a figure of £75. Zenith's bag is competitively priced at only £19.99. Within a quarter of a year, you will be saving money."

The bags are environmentally friendly and inspired by the outpouring of reaction to the five-pence plastic bag levy.

Zenith hope to provide an innovative solution to the use of plastic bags in this country, with their research finding 8.5bn bags are taken from supermarkets and only one in 10 of those is recycled. The boys have a legacy to live up to as last year's team from Southborough High School reached the London finals. Buy bags online at zenithye.com.

Crescent Road Community, who share three houses, have come to a deal with landlords

Year-long battle is over as the last commune in London is broken up

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@london.newsquest.co.uk

AFTER almost a year of fighting to stay in its home in an affluent area of Kingston, London's last remaining commune is being broken up by its social housing provider.

The Crescent Road Community (CRC), which has shared three joined houses in Coombe Hill for almost 40 years, has come to a deal with landlords One Housing Group (OHG).

But the 21 adults and three children who call the community home will be placed in separate social houses in areas across the capital.

Jean Vidler, one of the community's longest serving members, said: "Some people are still negotiating so I can't say too much."

"It is sad we will not live together but we will always help each other. The experience of being in a community has been fantastic and we have been very lucky. We are lifelong friends."

"Vulnerable people are being moved first and the uncertainty of not knowing where we will end up is worrying, but I know we are lucky compared to some people who desperately need housing."

Fellow CRC resident Des Kay said: "It is quite outrageous really that a community that has existed for such a long time is broken up in this way, but there doesn't seem to be any pressure at the moment to move us on."

When CRC started fighting its eviction last spring members were supported by Zac Goldsmith, Russell Brand and Jeremy Corbyn plus countless Kingston organisations it had helped over the years.

Protest: Members of the Crescent Road Community demonstrated outside Kingston County Court during their dispute with One Housing Group over the future of the buildings they had called home for decades

Sam Hermitage, from Kingston Environment Centre, said: "From its beginnings as a group of ideological thinkers, straight out of the 1960s hippy movement, to dedicated conscientious doers who have helped change the way we think in the borough, CRC has always been for good and always with the environment and planet in mind."

The future of the three houses in Crescent Road has not been decided by OHG.

An OHG spokesman said: "We are pleased the residents of Crescent Road have voluntarily agreed to accept offers of new housing.

"It is expected that it will still take several months for all residents to be re-housed and we are meeting with them regularly."

"We are now completing detailed assessments to decide on the best use of these buildings to meet our purpose."

Historic Almshouses in central Kingston has a vacancy on the Board of Trustees.

This is a voluntary position and offers an opportunity to engage with the charity in an interesting and satisfying way

The position is as Honorary Treasurer, shadowing the retiring Treasurer until he leaves in March and then assuming the role. It would suit a person with financial experience and involves preparing accounts, overseeing expenditure, monitoring insurances and investments and supervising payroll and residents' contribution levels. A commercial firm of accountants is engaged to manage the preparation of many of these functions.

Please apply not later than March 1st to the Clerk to the Trustees, ShanthiniShanmugaguru 12, Milner Road, Kingston upon Thames, KT1 2AU.

Please include your CV and a brief letter setting out why you are interested in finding out more about this opportunity..

Planning chief allows mast in garden

GOVERNMENT planning chiefs dismissed out of hand a decades-old covenant that promised the people of Berrylands that a small patch of land in Raeburn Avenue would remain untouched as a public garden.

This move has allowed the construction of a 13m phone mast.

The mast, belonging to Vodafone, was erected this week after more than 300 residents signed a petition.

Construction was also blocked twice by Kingston Council before the communications giant appealed to ministers last March.

Planning inspector Sarah Stevens dismissed 'issues relating to a restrictive covenant' - agreed between Surbiton Urban Council and former landowner Thomas and Macdonald in 1930 - in a decision in December.

She said: "Prior to the determination of the appeal the council confirmed that it was no longer contesting the appeal. "Nevertheless, as the appeal has not been withdrawn it therefore remains to be determined."

She concluded that the design would not be out of place, and would not cause safety problems or stop the use of the garden.

But Rob Harris, of Alexandra Drive, said at a Surbiton neighbourhood committee meeting last week: "The land is supposed to be available for people to have a green space within the area."

"The scale of it is absolutely ridiculous."

The covenant, dated December 5, 1930, states that the land 'shall not be used otherwise for the purpose of an open space'.

The small plot of greenery was sold to the council for £150, records show.

A planning inspectorate

Outrage: Berrylands residents have opposed the mast's installation spokesman confirmed: "In this instance, it appears that the inspector deemed that the restrictive covenant was not a matter for this appeal."

Extension to talks on 20 limit

MOTORISTS are a step closer to being forced to drive at 20mph on all of Surbiton's residential streets – barring four main roads – after a consultation into the changes was extended by councillors.

Ewell Road, Portsmouth Road, Upper Brighton Road and Hook Road would retain a 30mph limit.

It comes after bitter rows between Surbiton neighbourhood councillors over limits already imposed in Claremont Road, Surbiton Hill Road, North Road and Dolphin Road.

About 20,000 people, taking in firms and residential areas in the town centre, Surbiton Hill, Berrylands and Alexandra wards, will be part of the consultation in the autumn.

St Mark's councillor Liz Green said: "I believe very strongly in the 20 mph in the residential areas."

But Alexandra councillor Chris Hayes said: "I remain sceptical about the blanket-wide 20mph approach."

"We still need to remember that we are going against the recommendation of Kingston police."

Results of the consultation will go to Kingston Council's residents' committee if endorsed.

Zoo residents tuck in as year of monkey starts

Tucking in: Monkeys at Chessington World of Adventures celebrating the new Chinese year of the monkey MONKEYS at Chessington World of Adventures celebrated Chinese New Year by having a night in with a takeaway.

The year of the monkey has begun, and runs from February 8 to January 27, 2017.

All around the globe events marked the new year. In Sydney, Australia, the iconic sails of the Opera House were illuminated red, dancers performed at Ditan Park in Beijing and Chiswick House Gardens debuted a lantern festival.

Simian residents of Chessington World of Adventures enjoyed treats in takeaway boxes, unaware they characterise people born in this year to be lively, quick-witted, curious and mischievous.

The year of the monkey is also believed to one of the most unlucky in the Chinese calendar. Famous people born under this sign include Julius Caesar, Leonardo da Vinci, Charles Dickens and Lord Byron.

The main London parade to see in the Chinese New Year is on Sunday. It leaves Trafalgar Square at 10am.

JOBS KEPT: All 19 people employed by Surbiton's 99p store have been retained after Poundland's takeover, the bargain chain said this week.

VALENTINE'S CARDS: Quotes from of the children cared for by Shooting Star Chase have been turned into Valentine's cards to raise money for charity. Lovebirds can get their hands on one of the limited-edition cards at shootingstarchase.org.uk.

JOB STATS: Figures, released by London's Poverty Profile, show that about 5 per cent of the borough's working age population is unemployed, the fourth-lowest level in London behind Kensington and Chelsea, Bromley and Richmond.

SKULL FOUND: A fully-intact leopard skull listed for sale on eBay led to a raid and seizure by police in Surbiton. Officers later searched a home in Claremont Road on January 28. A police spokesman confirmed the item taken was thought to be a leopard skull. No arrests have been made. Officers tweeted: "Typical day for the @MPSKingston wildlife crime officer – just executed a search warrant and seized a leopard skull."

DOG SHOW: A 19-year-old has launched an online dog show to raise money. Megan Taylor, of Tolworth, took on her dog Ruby to help her after a head injury in 2011, and wants to raise money for Dog Aid. Email entries, which cost £2 each to rubythesuperdog.charity@gmail.com by February 27.

Councillors debate budget supermarket's plans

Lidl HQ proposals

REPORTER
ELLIE CAMBRIDGE
ellie.cambridge@london.newsquest.co.uk

THE transformation of Tolworth continues as councillors discuss plans to install Lidl's headquarters in Jubilee Way.

Both the Surbiton neighbourhood committee and the south of the borough committee met, in separate locations, to discuss the merits and negatives of the application.

If approved by Kingston Council a five-storey building including offices, restaurant and a gym will be built.

Cllr Andy Johnson said at the Surbiton neighbourhood committee meeting last Tuesday: "I think it's great that a company like Lidl wants to come here."

St Mark's councillor Liz Green said: "It is next to Tolworth station so 445 parking spaces seems a lot. The main concern is the traffic."

Discussions of the application follow the approval of a new Premier Inn in Kingston Road last October and Tolworth Tower in January, with plans to develop the former Toby Jug site sure to follow.

The cut-price supermarket chain agreed a £10 million deal for the land with Kingston Council in July last year and the plans displaced the former Jubilee Way motorbike track, which had been running from the site for 14 years.

The plans are still subject to planning permission but it was agreed in July Lidl would pay £2.1 million per acre for a thousand-year lease on the 4.8-acre site.

Kingston Council said 500 jobs would be brought to the borough, but the deal has scuppered plans for Arrow Plastics to move to the land.

Part of the Jubilee Way site had been earmarked for the relocation of the company, but that deal no longer stands.

The council was in discussion with Arrow Plastics to find a new site, but a move from their Hampden Road site has not yet been agreed.

Cllr Andrew Day said: "I think there were generally concerns about the traffic impact in the area."

A date is not set for the development control committee meeting but the decision target date is March 17.

GRANTS GIVEN: A flood of generosity saw five groups working in Surbiton receive more money in grants than Kingston Council officers had recommended. Surbiton councillors allocated £4,050 at a meeting last Tuesday. Surbiton and District Historical Society, SeeAbility, the Fircroft Trust and Quilombo all received £750. Hook and Southborough Bowling Club received £650 and the Cornerhouse arts centre received £400.

MOTORING BAN: A drink-driver has been banned from the roads for three years after he was caught twice over the limit. Seung Hyo Sin, 27, of Amberwood Rise, Kingston, was caught in Wandsworth in December. He was also fined £425 at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on Thursday, January 28.

REFURB DELAY: Completion of the refurbishment of Kingston Hospital's main outpatients entrance has been delayed for a second time, interim chief executive Ann Radmore told colleagues last week. There is no definite end date to the work.

NEW BOILERS: Mayor of London Boris Johnson has launched a boiler cashback scheme designed to replace inefficient appliances. Residents whose boilers are running at 70 per cent efficiency or less and for whom the appliance is their main source of heat can apply for £400 cashback on new models. Charities said replacing an inefficient boiler can reduce the risk of carbon monoxide poisoning. Visit london.gov.uk/boilers for full details.

Current proposed option is 'completely inappropriate'

Ex-care home could become school site

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@london.newsquest.co.uk

A FORMER care home could be home to Surbiton's new free school after complaints that the current proposed site in central Kingston is 'completely inappropriate'.

Newent House, in Brown's Road, is one of 'three or four' options in Surbiton being looked at as a potential school site, according to council leader Kevin Davis.

Surbiton councillor Malcolm Self proposed the building as a potential school site at Kingston Council's growth committee on Wednesday after officers said the building should be deemed 'surplus to requirements' and sold off.

Cllr Davis said: "Discussions have taken place about three or four sites of which [Newent House] is one."

"We are still trying to work out how much it is worth and whether we hand it over for a school for which we get very little money."

The Education Funding

Potential: Newent House

Authority (EFA) has bought Swan House, in High Street, to be Surbiton's new free school.

But parents, councillors and residents have complained the building has no playing fields or parking, is on a main road and in Kingston town centre and not Surbiton.

Cllr Davis added: "You are not going to get me to say anything nice about the EFA."

"I think they are the most incompetent agency I have ever worked with. They don't pay [a lot of money] to buy buildings from other public bodies such as councils.

"South West London and St George's also own part of the site so this would have to be looked into."

Councillors voted to overrule residents' concerns about parking in 2014 to bring adult education services to Newent House.

While councillors all agreed that the former care home would be far more suitable than Swan House they also agreed that parking would be a significant issue for residents.

Cllr Self said: "We have a site here that is on the face of it a 100-million-times better than Swan House."

"This surely has to be kept open as a possibility. I know that there will be concerns about parking, like there was over Lime Tree, and those concerns are valid."

"But we need school places and Newent House would be a better site than Swan House."

Snout badges: Ruby with her sash

Ruby earns 30 badges

A TOLWORTH dog has earned 30 badges as an honorary member of the 1st Tolworth Scout Group.

Ruby started working towards the artist, book reader, skater, air activities, nautical skills and emergency aid badges from July 2015, and now has a full-looking sash.

Her owner, 19-year-old Megan Taylor, first got involved in scouting when she was six years old.

She said: "I am currently completing a degree in animal behaviour and welfare with Kingston University and Merrist Wood College and as part of my studies was assigned an animal training project. For my project I decided to combine my love of animals with my passion for scouting and train my dog to complete a number of tasks and tricks which corresponded with cub scout badges."

Business student delighted after selling car to pay for cosmetic surgery

My new look cost £4,500... and it's simply the breast

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@
london.newsguardian.co.uk

A KINGSTON University student who sold her car to pay for breast augmentation has said the implants have not made her feel "any more attractive."

While most students are scrimping and saving for rent or spending their loans on big nights out, Miranda Forsyth has traded in her beloved Fiat 500 to pay £4,500 increasing her A-cups to double Ds.

The third-year business student and part-time model says she does not regret the surgery, but it has not made her feel better about the way she looks.

She said: "I don't feel more attractive since the surgery. It is hard to explain really. I love my new boobs but don't think other people see me as better looking because of them. I can't recommend it to other people. You just have to do what's right for you."

Miss Forsyth saved up to buy her £12,000 car three years ago, but got just £6,500 for it when she sold it in September. She was booked in for surgery the very next week.

She said: "If I set my mind on something I just do it. I really had nothing there before so I just decided to do it."

But her surgery almost did not happen when the day before she was due at her Brentford clinic appointment a cyst on her ovary exploded.

She said: "I just couldn't get up and was in loads of pain. I was rushed to hospital and doctors said it was quite common for women to have cysts. Mine must've just been in a painful place. It was actually good in a way, because the only bit I was scared about was the drip in my arm and I'd already had one when I was in hospital the day before."

Under the knife: Miranda before, right, and after her surgery

Miss Forsyth is in the process of setting up her own underwear business but hopes to become a city trader if it does not work out.

She said: "I started my first business three years ago making cards. A year-and-a-half ago I met my boyfriend, who owns a clothing company, and met some modelling contacts. Then I was approached on Instagram by Front magazine to do a bit of modelling."

The 22-year-old has almost 8,000 followers on Instagram and has been sharing snaps of her new assets with her fans. She has had to spend the other £2,000 from her car sale on new clothes to fit her bigger chest.

Boyfriend Ben Stripe loves his girlfriend's new look, but Miss Forsyth has still not told her mum.

She said: "I don't think she would like it. When I told her I was thinking about it she was fine but then she just kept saying I didn't need it."

Ultra runner's new record

AN ULTRA runner set a new 12-hour treadmill world record at Kingston University.

Susie Chan ran a total distance of 68.54 miles in 12 hours in the human performance laboratory at the Penryhn Road campus.

The 40-year-old from Farnham in Surrey beat the previous women's record for the same time period of 66.79 miles.

The record attempt was supervised by senior lecturer Hannah Moir and technician Chris Howe, with 10 sport science and nutrition students to witness and keep time.

A live stream was set up by the university; the YouTube stream had more than 3,000 views and hundreds of messages of support were tweeted to Ms Chan.

These messages were put on a screen set up in front of the treadmill to keep her going in the extreme challenge.

The mother of one was congratulated by British marathon world record holder Paula Radcliffe who tweeted: "I've never watched someone run on a treadmill on my computer until now - @Susie_Chan you got me!"

Turn out for Love Kingston day 2016

KINGSTON will come together on Sunday for Love Kingston day and raise vital cash for charitable causes.

Events running across the town include an all-day gig and science activities for kids.

The umbrella fund's focus for 2016 will be 'isolation to integration' - helping those who are disconnected from their community back into the fold. It recently handed out £25,000 in grants to charities.

Schools, businesses, pubs, banks, choirs and others have pledged their time on Valentine's Day.

The Fighting Cocks will host live music from 2pm, while Eden Walk will house art and science projects for children from noon. The Canbury Arms and the Wych Elm will offer a weekend of Valentines specials, raffles and give-aways, Love Kingston organisers said. Fund manager Sorrel Parsons said: "Our borough is one of the best places to live in London and Surrey but there are isolated residents on the margins that need our help to connect to people and place."

Kingston foodbank organiser Paul Pickhaver said: "Love

Kingston Day itself has really helped to not just raise funds but also raise awareness of crisis issues locally and help people find meaningful and effective ways of responding."

Love Kingston channels 70 per cent of donations to a legacy fund to help charities in the future. Ten per cent goes to the London Community Foundation, which manages Love Kingston, and 20 per cent is immediately distributed in grants.

Love Kingston works in partnership with Kingston Voluntary Action. Visit love-kingston.org.uk.

Council believes it could increase income with major retailer

Pizza chain move could displace craft traders

REPORTER
RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@london.newsquest.co.uk

A PIZZA restaurant chain is the most likely contender to move into Kingston's iconic Market House later this year, displacing the independent craft shops that currently trade in the building.

The Stable Bar and Restaurant, an upmarket pizza, pie and cider brand established in Dorset in 2009, was singled out as the "preferred bidder" for the 1838 Market Place landmark.

A report, discussed by Kingston Council's growth committee last Wednesday night, noted that the Market House should be offered out to retailers because it was costing the council money to maintain. It said "many reputable retailers" viewed the building but most chose not to bid because of issues with its size and location. Many prospective tenants were also said to have been put off by the "encroachment and smell" of the market stalls at the front of the building.

Council leader Kevin Davis said: "I have more emails in my inbox about this than any other planning issue. It is a building that has struggled."

Market House is currently home to several craft sellers and a tea room and was operated by Kingston First between 2010 and 2014. Kingston Council collects between £30,000 and £45,000 a year in rent from the current tenants but estimates that more than three times that could be made by moving in an established retailer.

Cllr Jon Tolley said: "One of the very few council-owned buildings in the middle of the community space should be kept for community use but we need to be pragmatic."

Abigail Perry, Stable's marketing chief, said Stable was "actively looking for sites in Kingston".

Journalist covered famous events like Great Train Robbery

Farewell to 'one of the best' crime reporters

JON MITCHELL

jonathan.mitchell@
london.newsquest.co.uk

A FORMER Surbiton journalist and Kingston Grammar School pupil who reported on the Great Train Robbery in 1963 has died aged 86.

John Stevens, originally from Sunbury, made his name as a reporter for the Evening Standard for his love of breaking news, having moved from a news agency in Surbiton.

He died at Kingston Hospital on Tuesday, January 12 after an illness, surrounded by his daughter and two sons.

As a reporter Mr Stevens prided himself on his coverage of breaking news, and was often first on the scene for murders and IRA bombings during the 1970s, due to his extensive contacts with police officers.

He was said to be highly respected in Scotland Yard.

His first major scoop, Mr Stevens joined the crime desk at the paper after his coverage of the Great Train Robbery and would go on to cover crime during the rise of the notorious Kray twins in the 1960s.

He worked at the paper for almost 30 years before retiring as chief crime reporter in 1991 – a role he had occupied since the mid-1970s.

Mr Stevens' first career after leaving Kingston Grammar School was with the armed forces. He joined Esher News in 1954, where he met his first wife and reporter Marion, before spending a spell reporting in Coventry.

In 1958 the couple moved back to London, where Mr Stevens began working for the Frank Woods news agency in Surbiton. When the Evening Standard bought the business, the manager insisted on the paper taking on Mr Stevens as part of the deal.

Outside of journalism Mr Stevens led a cultured life, having read the complete works of Shakespeare, Charles Dickens and Thomas Hardy. He would also frequently listen to classical artists such as Beethoven and Wagner.

The Standard paid tribute to their veteran reporter in their obituary, describing Mr Stevens as 'one of the last old-fashioned crime correspondents' and how he was 'proud to call himself a reporter'.

The Press Gazette called him 'one of the best' as well as praising his lustrous handlebar moustache and love of good ale.

His funeral took place on February 9 at the South West Middlesex Crematorium.

Decision on future of women’s health department delayed amid claims

Patients being treated by staff ‘who need textbooks’

REPORTER
REBECCA TAYLOR
rebecca.taylor@london.newsquest.co.uk

A FINAL decision on the future of a women’s health department in St George’s Hospital will be pushed back until at least March after criticism by doctors and councillors of a “flawed process”.

In the meantime patients are allegedly being treated by some people with “no training whatsoever”, who it is claimed, need to borrow textbooks from the library.

The urogynecology department at St George’s in Tooting has been in limbo since June, about a month after the clinical lead stood down. The proposed closure was debated by Wandsworth councillors in November. Sutton and Kingston councils have also scrutinised it.

Michelle Fynes, a consultant in the department, has been leading calls to keep the unit open. She told Sutton Council: “I came across a local consultant gynaecologist in the outpatient clinic seeing patients of between seven to 10 years of age in an adult clinic.

“She had no training whatsoever. She had borrowed textbooks from the library the day before to read up. She had an adult assistant with her. The children whom she was seeing needed a specialist paediatric service, not a general gynaecologist. I had been advised that any consultant is sufficient – that they don’t need anyone with specialist training and that is quite frankly wrong.”

Professor Andrew Rhodes, from St George’s, told Kingston councillors last week: “If we started the consultation again, we would have done it differently. We are coming to you very late in the day. The consultation is closed, but there are a number of suggestions we are working through. I don’t know what the answer is going to be and we’re working through the options.”

Since initial concerns were raised about the consultation, another department, the paediatric and adolescent gynaecology service (PAG), has also come under fire. Dr Fynes also works in this service.

Professor Rhodes assured the committee that no children had come to any harm and there had been no breach of safeguarding issues in the PAG service. He said any delays in the PAG service were linked to administration and sickness issues and that there had never been an intention to close the PAG. A St George’s spokeswoman said children “were not part of the transfer of the urogynecology service

Criticised: St George’s Hospital in Tooting, which treats Kingston patients

[to Croydon] and their care remains at St George’s by appropriately trained medical staff.”

The hospital board will make a decision on March 3.

Safety of junction where Lavna Chuttoo was killed by lorry to be reviewed

I think only width restrictors and road blocks on these residential side roads will slow lorries and large four wheel drive types down. The Groves is a race track as the bumps make no difference to large vehicles and at speed they literally take off crashing over them. They then slam brakes on to try and stop at the junction where young children all too often are walking across without realising these large vehicles are on them before they know it. Very sad indeed.

I NEVER had the good fortune to meet Auschwitz survivor Martin Bennett, who died recently; he must have had a true generosity of spirit.

This amazing generation of survivors is dying out, but they leave a legacy for us to treasure.

My late parents were Holocaust survivors, and I grew up honouring the memory not only of those members of my family who had died in Auschwitz, but also of those brave non-Jews in Nazi-occupied countries who risked torture and death to stand up for the Jews and to help and shelter them wherever possible.

Like Mr Bennett, my parents lived full lives and gave us a lot of love. They worked hard in an attempt to ensure that such an outrage never recurred.

Sadly the world is still a place of unspeakable cruelty. We have to redouble our efforts.

Why ruin our vintage market?

AS ONE of the traders the Market House is vital to my business selling art and wedding fashion sketches, and it will totally be affected as it is the perfect outlet.

Kingston is brimming with restaurants and coffee bars – the market outside has already been changed from a fun choice of stalls to food only.

So why on Earth give such a beautiful building to yet another restaurant in Kingston, for such a small increase in council return?

As word spreads and people come across it the vintage market brings in more and more visitors every week with its unique charm and style, which in turn feeds the local stalls with business.

The market is elegant and different. When I've worked behind the till, I've met people who have come from as far as Wandsworth because they have heard about it.

The vintage market and tea rooms support local craftsmen and artists, who all pay huge council taxes already, and serves the beautiful building perfectly.

Please don't destroy it for the sake of big chain businesses and short-sightedness.

You will also upset the local stalls who will have seen an increase in business due to the vintage market.

Such a stunning building, filled with top-quality crafts, this is something special in the town that no other market town has.

And instead of selling it out, Kingston Council should be publicising it and giving it full support.

Foxes' football exploits highlight the benefits of hindsight

Editor Andrew Parkes has a number of thoughts every week, here are just five of them

5 THOUGHTS OF THE WEEK...

1. Hindsight, as we all know, is a wonderful thing. Even the bookies didn't see this one coming, or they wouldn't have offered odds of 5,000-1 on Leicester winning the Premier League. Of course, we all wish we'd put a few quid on this particular long shot now, but if you had put a tenner on and had the chance to 'cash in early' would you be taking the option? There must be dozens of City fans out there who had a flutter at the beginning of the season, if only as a matter of habit, lucky devils.

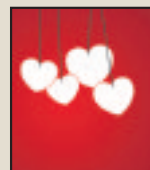

2. On the subject of football, when will the powers-that-be finally learn a lesson from other sports and make sensible changes to the rules of the game? Stop blithering on forever about the vagaries of offside and how difficult it is to police. The answer is simple, get rid of the offside law altogether – job done. It serves no purpose and anyway, someone would always mark any attacker who chose to hang around the goal area.

3. As a married man it's not something I need to trouble myself with, but later this month, for one day only, tradition has it that women can propose to men. Apparently the idea is that allowing them this one day serves to balance up any inequality between the sexes. But did you also know that not every year divisible by four is a leap year? If the year is also divisible by 100, but not 400, then it isn't a leap year. Anyone remember 2,000 wasn't a leap year?

4. And, Valentine's Day is almost upon us. Though I have to admit I'm far more interested that the apostrophe is used correctly than ever I am in any romantic notions. I just heard a reporter in the newsroom have the cheek to say: "When in doubt whack (an apostrophe) in". What is the world coming to?

5. Finally, is there ever any excuse for not replying to job applicants if they're not lucky enough to get the job? Personally I don't believe there is an excuse, but I'm told that increasingly those advertising jobs never bother to respond to unsuccessful job hunters – shame on them.

A3 issues

THE CNM proposal for housing at Tolworth Tower and the proposals for the Toby Jug/Tesco site are the two biggest challenges for Tolworth developing in the south of our town.

There will be other developments that have to grapple with the A3, in the future.

Do we take the position – effectively – that a decision in the 1920s to build a by-pass around our town is going to stymie development here forever?

We have the A3; let us ask ourselves – what is the rational way to work with it and its traffic to optimise housing development in our town and to deal with air pollution?

We want our town to grow. We want it to grow in a balanced way that keeps the Broadway and the station at its centre.

BOB PHILLIPS

Recycling ire

THE front of my house is now adorned by an additional wheelie bin. It has been further compounded by finding out the green bags used for food recycling are no longer being supplied.

When we phoned today to ask for some we were told to go and buy them in Sainsbury's or just wrap the food in old newspapers.

I can see that the food recycling totals will dramatically drop, as how many people will want smelly wet food in the little caddy and then the larger box? It is difficult to keep these clean.

JOHN REID

Fight the cuts

I ATTENDED one of the Kingston Conversations on the Budget. Residents were overwhelmed by the choices thrust on them in this consultation.

It felt like a mere exercise that will allow our elected councillors to state they had asked residents what our priorities are and, when they make the cuts, say residents had chosen the areas where the axe should fall.

I do not believe that when people voted Tory they were expecting cuts to our public services so deep that we have to choose between protecting children or funding transport for people with disabilities. If the Tories are the party we can trust with the economy, why are they still cutting budgets to pay off the deficit nearly six years later.

Children's author Dame Jacqueline Wilson talks to DOMINIC VIRGO about the stage version of her book Hetty Feather, which comes to the Rose Theatre this month.

PHOEBE THOMAS STARS IN HETTY FEATHER

ACUTABOVE...

Kingston's legendary children's author Dame Jacqueline Wilson is "thrilled to bits" that her book Hetty Feather - which last year became a West End hit - is returning to Kingston's Rose Theatre.

The award-winning writer and former Children's Laureate published the first in a series of books about a fiery red haired girl and her adventures at London's Foundling Hospital for abandoned children in 2009.

It has been adapted for television and a stage show debuted at the Rose before earning an Olivier Award nomination in the West End.

It returns to the Rose from February 24 to 28. Fans will also get the chance to meet Dame Jacqueline at Bourne Halls on Saturday, February 6. Speaking to Vibe, Dame Jacqueline said: "It's lovely, the whole set fits the Rose's stage perfectly it looks absolutely great."

She added: "Any boys out there will probably think 'oh boring', but I promise it's full of fun and excitement."

"Each time I've seen the production you see the boys beforehand being a bit like 'oh I don't want to be here' and they end up liking it just as much as the girls."

The play has been adapted by the award-winning script writer Emma Reeves and directed by Sally Cookson.

Dame Jacqueline said: "As an author it's absolutely exciting if you're lucky enough to have one of your books adapted for the stage because it's your only opportunity to sit amongst all the children and see which parts go down well."

"And often when the lights go up, it's children's parents that have tear stains - which is very sweet."

Dame Jacqueline was highly impressed with the cast and spoke highly of Phoebe Thomas who plays the main character:

She said: "She's just made that part her own, you just couldn't imagine anyone else playing it now. She's got the ability to make you believe in her no matter what age she's playing, and her trapeze act is incredible."

The acclaimed author, who has lived in Kingston since she was three, is a big fan of the Rose and sees it a vital part of the community.

She said: "It's there for really world class theatre. But as well as all these big productions they do a lot of things for young people in the community and their summer workshops are brilliant."

"And the Rose is open all day so young mums can come with their babies, there's even a knitting group that comes for the slightly more mature members of the community."

"It's got a good cafe - it's everything that you would want and I think that it's a delight that it's here in Kingston."

Dame Jacqueline is renowned for tackling difficult subjects such as mental illness in her books and she told us told us the reason she did so was because the books she read growing up were 'kind of bland'.

She said: "They didn't really cover any real sad or worrying things, parents were always very middle class and whatever they said was meant to be right."

"And that's lovely if you have parents like that, but if you don't it must be bewildering, and I've always been attracted to writing about children who are the odd ones out."

Meet Jacqueline Wilson at Bourne Hall on Saturday, February 6. Tickets cost £5. Go to epsomplayhouse.co.uk. Hetty Feather is at the Rose Theatre, Kingston, from February 24 to 28. Tickets cost from £8. Go to rosetheatrekingston.org

Kew's Orchid Festival, until March 6. Go to kew.org

Kew Gardens is never short of colour but it is even more of a tropical paradise now with the opening of the Orchid Festival.

The Royal Botanic Gardens' Princess of Wales conservatory has been transformed into a celebration of Brazil's plantlife and fascinating habitats with orchids and other tropical plants filling the steamy glasshouse.

Among suspended orchids, a tunnel of exotic plants and rain-forest trees swathed in colour, there are five central figures around the pond which allude to the flamboyant costumes of Brazilian carnival dancers.

Display horticulturalist Elisa Biondi said: "This year the pond display will be a true explosion of colour – a real carnival."

"What we want to do is capture the essence of Brazil, to take visitors on a journey through the biomes of this incredible country, all the while showing the range of conservation and science work

SWEDISH MEATBALLS

Serves 4, Time: 1 hour

Swedish meatballs are a family favourite. They are easy on the palate, comforting and fun to eat - children love them and can help make them too.

TIPS: The flavourings (and sauce) change the style of the dish: cream and allspice for Swedish meatballs, tomato and oregano for Italian, harissa and tomato for Moroccan etc. Try your own variations...

INGREDIENTS: (makes around 24 meatballs)

Meatballs: 500g-600g mix of beef and pork mince, one onion, one egg whisked, 75g bread crumbs, 200ml single cream, two tablespoons oil and one tablespoon butter, half a teaspoon allspice, flour.

Gravy: Two onions, 500ml chicken stock, half a teaspoon allspice, one bay leaf, a sprig of thyme, 10g dried chopped porcini mushrooms (optional), 125ml white wine (optional), 100ml single cream, one tablespoon redcurrant jelly, one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon oil, one tablespoon butter.

METHOD: 1) Make the gravy. Finely chop the onion and fry in oil and butter on a low heat for 10 minutes. Add the herbs and spices, mushrooms (if using) and flour. Stir for a minute then add the wine (if using) and cook for five minutes. Add stock and simmer for 15 minutes. Add the redcurrant jelly. Add the cream. Season with salt, pepper and lemon to taste.

2) Make the meatballs. Chop an onion as fine as possible and fry in oil and butter. Sweat gently for about 10 minutes. Combine the cream with the breadcrumbs. Mix the meat, egg and breadcrumbs together in a large bowl. Add allspice, season with salt and pepper and mix thoroughly and form walnut-size balls. For best results rest the meatballs in the fridge for 30 minutes to firm-up.

3) Cook the meatballs. Coat the meatballs in flour and fry in butter and oil until golden brown. Do this in batches, setting aside cooked meatballs after each batch. If necessary, clean the pan of burnt residues between batches adding more butter and oil.

4) Combine the meatballs and gravy. Add the cooked meatballs to the gravy and heat gently for five minutes, allowing the flavours to blend and the sauce to thicken. Add more stock or water if the gravy is too thick.

5) Serve the meatballs. Serve with boiled or mash potatoes, pasta or rice. For an authentic Go to whatdadcooked.com for more.

Tips for first-time renters

WITH so many bits and pieces to consider, it is easy to overlook some of the less obvious factors that you need to take into account before you rent a property. Here are some tips for first-time renters.

Contents insurance: your landlord is responsible for insuring the property itself, but a condition of your tenancy agreement will more than likely be that you get contents cover. This is simple enough if you are living alone or with your family as you just need to hit the comparison sites and find the best deal.

However, it can be a bit trickier if you are living in a shared house as many policies won't cover them. So, double check any policies that you are offered and always let them know that it's a shared house or you could end up with your insurance being invalidated.

Is your deposit protected: since 2007 it has been law that your landlord must put your deposit into a protected deposit scheme. If they do not then they can be fined and be liable to pay you up to three times the deposit amount.

Getting your deposit back: make sure that you check your contract for the exact conditions of your deposit being returned to you. It may request a deep clean of the property, it may say that carpets must be cleaned professionally, or that any picture hooks must be removed and filled in. Knowing what will be expected of you (and what won't be) will help you to prepare for the future better.

Shop around for utilities: you could save a lot on your gas/electricity by shopping around. It's amazing how many people just stay with the same supplier the previous tenant had, but it's unnecessary. Switching supplier is easy and you might be surprised at how much you can save.

Free furniture: don't feel like you have to go out buying all brand new furnishings either. You may have a picture in your head of your new and super stylish pad, but it's best to manage your expectations. Websites such as Freecycle have loads of free stuff that you can acquire for your house.

Boosting your credit score: in 2012 the possibility was announced that rent payments may start contributing towards your credit score. This means that if you are on time month in, month out then you may find it easier to get credit down the line. However, if you are unreliable with your rent, you could see the opposite.

Take pictures when you move in: pay special attention to any areas of concern and check them against the contents inventory.

This will help avoid any issues at the end of the tenancy, if you get accused of causing damage that was already present when you got there.

Further information about this and other property matters is available at hunters.com

Successful defence

KINGSTON boxer Anthony Ayinde retained his welterweight title in impressive fashion on Saturday in the main event of the Queensbury Boxing League's first show of the new season.

Ayinde, right, completed the first successful defence of his crown at the Copthorne Effingham Park Hotel in West Sussex, as he proved too slippery for challenger Lee Cannon in securing a comfortable unanimous points victory.

Progress: Danny Parsons is ready for the next step

Parsons eyes up next title

KINGSTON'S Danny Parsons has his sights on a crack at the Southern Area title by the end of the year, writes Stuart Amos.

The 22-year-old claimed the British challenge super lightweight title via a technical knockout win over Chris Aday in Plymouth last month.

It was his first win as an away fighter and the father-of-two, who works at Tolworth Tower, is hoping his success will attract a big crowd for him to fight on home soil.

"I want to fight in Tolworth in April and then fight for a Southern Area title by the end of the year," he said.

"I can fight in either the super lightweight or lightweight category, it doesn't bother me.

"A few people didn't think too much of me before, but they are starting to take a bit of notice now."

Debut boy

SURBITON 22-year-old Jack Clifford came off the bench to claim his first senior England cap on Saturday on the opening day of the Six Nations.

The former Cobham RFC youngster came on as a second half replacement for Harlequins clubmate and ex-England captain Chris Robshaw to play the final 10 minutes of his country's 15-9 Calcutta Cup triumph over Scotland at Murrayfield.

NEW MAN: Ks striker Pico Gomez benefits from Andre McCollin's return

Weight has lifted off Ks

KINGSTONIAN are not getting just goals with the return of Andre McCollin, says assistant boss Graham Harper.

McCollin took his tally to six goals in four Ryman Premier League games since his second coming at King'smeadow with a 86th-minute winner in Saturday's 2-1 home win over Grays Athletic.

Harper believes his side would have reached the play-offs last season had the former Yeovil Town striker stuck around for the whole campaign instead of moving to Aldershot Town in October 2014.

But it is not just the club's management team that are pleased he is back.

Pelayo Pico Gomez has looked a different player with a new strike partner alongside him and Harper believes his team will now start reaching its full potential.

"Andre has taken the weight off Pico's shoulders," he said.

"He has been trying to do too much this season, but with Andre doing what he does it frees up Pico to do what he does best.

"Pico was excellent on Monday - different class - and that is a positive for the whole team.

"Andre has given everyone a lift and we are grateful the board has done everything to get him back in."

Boss Tommy Williams added: "Andre has got so much pace he gets in behind defenders.

"He stretches sides which creates more room for the likes of Pico and Dan Bennett to play in.

"We always knew he and Pico would work well together."

Kingstonian have bounced back from a miserable Christmas period to sit sixth in the table - one point off the top five.

Harper insists finishing in the play-offs remains the priority with Dulwich Hamlet, Hampton & Richmond Borough and East Thurrock

New lease of life: Kingstonian striker Pelayo Pico Gomez never really got the chance to hit it off with Andre McCollin the last time the pair were at Kingsmeadow together SP95295

United starting to pull away at the summit.

"We need to keep plugging away," he added.

Evans' debut goal helps Surbiton hit high note

FORMER junior Australia international Naomi Evans marked her Surbiton Ladies debut with a goal to fire the Sugden Road side to the top of the Women's Hockey League Premier Division on Saturday.

Striker Evans added to a Jo Hunter penalty corner and a Sarah Page effort as head coach Brett Garrard's girls - including five colts - won 3-0 at the University of Birmingham.

The 24-year-old signed for the club in October prior to her arrival in the UK last month, meaning she is eligible to play in the EuroHockey Clubs Champions Cup in May.

Rebecca Middleton - formerly Herbert - played her first game for the club registered in her married name following her marriage to Great Britain captain Barry Middleton.

Surbiton head to Canterbury this Saturday.

Tolfrey is different quality

NEVER mind the return of Andre McCollin, Kingstonian assistant manager Graham Harper says goalkeeper Rob Tolfrey is the club's real hero, writes Stuart Amos.

McCollin's double secured a 2-1 win over Wingate & Finchley last Monday, but it was a string of stunning Tolfrey saves that caught the eye.

Ks have now won their past four league matches since McCollin's return to the club to move up to sixth in the table - a point off the top five.

And Harper believes that might have been a different story had Tolfrey not been between the sticks.

"You talk about Andre's goals and the lift he has given us, but I cannot tell you how good some of Rob's saves were against Wingate," he said.

"He has done it on numerous occasions for us before. He made some unbelievable saves - world class.

"He deserves the praise because he works so hard and is so professional.

"He is reaping the rewards."

Ks head to Billericay Town on Saturday.

FOOTBALL: Corinthian Casuals' play-off chances suffered a blow as Chipstead claimed a 1-1 draw in Ryman Division One South on Saturday. Shaun Okojie had given Casuals a first half lead only for Danny Dudley's stoppage time own goal, above, to deny the visitors maximum points. It left boss James Bracken to challenge his men to win 10 of their remaining 15 games. "Looking at the games we've got remaining, we've beaten eight of those teams already," said Bracken. Casuals host Chatham Town this weekend.

SWIMMING: Kingston Grammar School student Eddie Hunt claimed silver in the 13-year-old boys' 200m butterfly event at the second weekend of the Middlesex County Championships last month. He clocked two minutes 40 seconds, which was a new personal best by 6.57 seconds.

RUGBY: Kingston RFC will get no rest from their Surrey Division One plight after crashing out of the London & South East Divisional Cup with a 20-13 home defeat to Hastings & Bexhill on Saturday. They host Old Paulines in a must-win game this weekend, while Old Emanuel will entertain Chipstead.

FOOTBALL: Kingstonian Ladies reached the Surrey League Challenge Cup final with a 3-0 over Chertsey Town on Sunday. Sammy Algar, Carolina Boltz and Vicky Cockle got the goals to set up a clash with Egham Town Ladies later in the season.

ATHLETICS: Kingston & Polytechnic Harriers and Stragglers Running Club head to Lloyd Park, Croydon, for their final mens' Surrey Cross Country League Division Three match on Saturday.

NETBALL: Tiffin Netball Club beat Alpha 43-26 on Saturday to keep hopes of reaching the London & South East Regional Netball League Division Two promotion play-offs alive.

FIXTURES: Kingstonian's home Ryman Premier League clashes with Bognor Regis Town and Farnborough have been re-scheduled for April 4 and April 11, respectively.
